OK, I made those changes to the index page and it should refresh soon. I don't know why I have thought it is Dec. 14th all day! ☺

Let's go with

NIST has initiated a process to solicit, evaluate, and standardize one or more quantum-resistant public-key cryptographic algorithms. Nominations for post-quantum candidate algorithms may now be submitted, up until the final deadline of November 30, 2017. Full details can be found in the Call for Proposals Announcement.

That seems like a lot of text to add, especially since it's already on another page. What if we went with just the first line and then pointed to the CFP announcement.

I was looking at the page that comes up when you go to www.nist.gov/pqcrypto. If you replace the NEWS – August 2, 2016: paragraph with the paragraph I just sent. That would be good.

Also, the last paragraph which starts "NIST is taking the following steps to initiate...." Seems outdated at this point. Should perhaps the text that is in the "Call for Proposals Announcement" page replace it?

Sorry for noticing all this after you post!

Dustin,

On the nist.gov/pqcrypto page, we should add something similar to August. Should the date be today? Or should I add the info on Tuesday, when the FRN is published. Feel free to edit the new text. I took it from announcement.

December 14, 2016: The National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) has initiated a process to solicit, evaluate, and standardize one or more quantum-resistant public-key cryptographic algorithms.

NEWS -- August 2, 2016: The National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) is requesting comments on a new process to solicit, evaluate, and standardize one or more quantum-resistant public-key cryptographic algorithms. Please see the Post-Quantum Cryptography Standardization menu at left.

Everything is up. I just need to go through and check links. Let me know if you see anything broken.

Next Tuesday, I will add the link to the Federal Register Notice.

Per a previous email from Andy, I believe all headings and titles should have "proposed" removed.

Final CFP 4.9 attached.

Please confirm,

Sara,

The NIST counsel's office sent us a few changes. They are marked in the attached file (final CFP 4.8 tracked changes). I also included a version (final CFP 4.8) without the tracked changes. I accept all their suggestions, so go ahead and make these final few changes.

I haven't heard from Andy if we can post today or tomorrow yet. So hold off posting until we hear.

Thanks!

Dustin
