Hmmm. That wasn't supposed to happen. We gave permission for a few teams to send us new specifications, as they said they were only changing typos.

We allowed them to revise their implementation in line with what Jacob was asking (so that he could verify the KATs). But they shouldn't have changed their spec pdf. Do you recall which ones?

By the way, in some submissions there appear to be new zip files or tarballs with updated supporting documentation that differs from and presumably supersedes the pdf files that are actually unzipped and directly available in the sharepoint submission folder.
