Subject: Bill Fefferman's working schedule

Hi, Matt:

Before we get this hiring through, Bill Fefferman has had arranged some summer travels. Some of them are academic/research and some of them are personal. As far as I understand, this does not involve traveling expense from us.

He will start with us on July 24 (orientation) and then he will start telework on August 10. After his July 24 starting date, I will give him assignments to work on for NIST. For example, look for future collaboration in research and potential new research resource, review some categories of quantum algorithms, etc. Since he will be very much on the road (in different time zones), the schedule will also be much flexible.

I hope this is not a problem. If you see some issue, please let me know.

Lily
