Not sure I understand.

I believe some people weren't migrated. We noticed that. We have had lots signing up in the recent days.

When you say only people accepted can view it, what do you mean? The archives? I think that is the case. The archives are publicly viewable for group members. That was not the case with the old system. Only NIST could view those archives. So it's not perfect, but it is better than what it was.

I was told this on Twitter over the weekend; also, apparently only people accepted into the group can view it so I'm not sure how this is an improvement over the previous situation. We should fix this whoever is admin of the group.
