

From: Chen, Lily \(Fed\)
To: Moody, Dustin \(Fed\)
Subject: Re: travel
Date: Friday, August 20, 2021 11:45:18 AM

Hi, Dustin,

For ICMC, I asked Matt. His reply is to watch for any new rules. Right now, local travel is allowed. I plan to go to the session for the panel Wednesday afternoon. I may attend virtually for other sessions. I think it depends on how you feel about to be physically there. I am sure they allow to give presentation online. One of the panelists in my panel cannot come. We will have a hybrid panelists .

For future travel, we do not know. If you need a new official passport, you can and should start to apply now. Otherwise, we will see what is the situation in October and November. I think for international travels, we need to see the policy of the countries we visit and the policy for returning to US.

Lily

From: Dustin Moody <dustin.moody@nist.gov>
Date: Friday, August 20, 2021 at 11:28 AM
To: Lily Chen <lily.chen@nist.gov>
Subject: travel

Lily,

Just curious - are you going to ICMC physically? Or do you know if other NISTers are going physically? Trying to decide what I'll do.

Also, from what I understand, travel to conferences is allowed, but would need to be approved. Just wanted to let you know of potential travel that I've been invited to. I'd sort of assume right now that these probably wouldn't be approved as I don't think they are super mission critical.

- Schloss Dagstuhl quantum cryptanalysis seminar. Dagstuhl, Germany. Oct 17-21.
- European Cyber Week, invited talk. Rennes, France. Nov 16-18.

Dustin